Applicants' remarks have been fully and carefully considered with examiner's response set forth below.

(1) Applicants contend that the Rodriguez reference fails to teach that the pop- have the current focus of the user. The Examiner disagrees.

Regarding Applicants' argument that figure 7 does not show an example of a display with pop-up comments, it is noted that figures 7-10 represents a sequence of events related to the pop-up comments, with figure 7 showing that the "pop-up comments" option highlighten as an indication of its being the selected option. Note that this is consistent with the convention adopted by man-machine interactive operations by high-lighting the object being selected.

Further, Rodriguez explicitly recites [FIG. 8 depicts an example stopped video window 130 that is presented to the user after the user stops the presentation of a video rental for which actors' pop-up comments had been activated ... (col. 11, lines 11-20]. The wording of "actors' pop-up comments had been activated" clearly indicates that the pop-up comments option shown in figure 7 has been "clicked," or activated, and as a result the display of the screen is now as shown in figure 8.

Moreover, figure 8, 133 shows more options that are only associated with the pop-up comments, such as "add a comment" and "de-activate comments." This is yet another indication that the "pop-up comments" has been activated.

Thus, Rodriguez clearly teaches that the "pop-up comments" option is the current focus of a user.

(2) Therefore the Examiner's position regarding the patentability of all claims remains the same as indicated in the previous Office Action.
